

Member, MLK Commission

Julie's career includes legal, investigative, governmental, non-profit, grant administration, health systems improvement, special projects, artistic, public relations and marketing experiences. As the Executive Director of the James "Tiger" Morton Catastrophic Illness Commission, Julie provides financial assistance to those West Virginians with a life-threatening catastrophic illness in dire need of medical assistance once all other resources are exhausted. She has worked for the State of West Virginia for over ten years in the capacity of Special Projects Counsel for the WV Supreme Court of Appeals and Grant Administrator for the Governor's Office, Office of Economic Opportunity, and Office of Health Enhancement and Lifestyle Planning at the Department of Health and Human Resources. Julie also currently serves on the Community Services Committee for the United Way of Central West Virginia, lives in Charleston, and is passionate about human rights, art and food

Martin Luther King, Jr.
State Holiday Commission
